The album reached the top 10 of the Billboard Contemporary Jazz Albums Chart in February 2000. Recording The Melody at Night, with You was recorded on 23 January–2 February 1998 at Jarrett's studio in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan. It was produced by the pianist and his son, the trumpeter and cornetist Nicholas Jarrett. The original intention was to record the album during the second week of January, but sessions were postponed to February due to various other commitments. Music On the album, Jarrett plays two pieces from his 1995 album Nightfall: "Prologue" and "Minnow in the Big Pond". He also plays "The Melody at Night", written and composed by pianist and band leader Duke Ellington, who first recorded the song in 1956 as "Lovely Melodies at Night". "Sometimes I Sit and Think" was originally written for the 1982 movie Crossroads and recorded by the trumpeter Clark Terry. Jarrett's version of the composition was first recorded by the trumpeter for his 1994 album Stompin' at the Savoy with the Bob Brookmeyer Quartet. "The Impossible Dream" is a jazz standard originally recorded by the American singer and pianist Billie Holiday in 1940. Jarrett's version, which he first recorded in 1975 with Charlie Haden and Paul Motian, is one of several recordings of the song to feature a synthesizer. Reception AllMusic rated The Melody at Night, with You 4 out of 5 stars. The review by Thom Jurek noted that Jarrett "must be one of the few remaining masters of the art of composing for the piano. His lyrical imagination, virtuoso technique, and rhythmic discipline have rarely, if ever, been on display in any other format". In the review for JazzTimes, Troy Collins wrote: "With his sizzling lyrical passages and rhythmic innovations, Jarrett continues to be a major force in contemporary music. His impeccable piano playing and ingenious improvisations are always at the top of their game and he displays a creativity that is almost uncanny".
